10. Public Comment

Mrs. Hallada clarified that the lot Mr. Worthy is requesting to rezone is not 49 acres, as previously stated, and that the acreage has changed with the filing of new deeds. She expressed concern that individuals who spoke in favor of the rezoning do not reside within the community. Mrs. Hallada noted that the Board approved the estate-residential zoning in 1997–1998 and emphasized that the community is unique in nature. She added that Mr. Gunter had received the Homeowners Association (HOA) documents and their covenants.

Mrs. Hallada concluded by stating that she did not wish to appear confrontational or aggressive in opposing the rezoning, but she could be a pit-bull.

Cindy Bushby of 155 Redbone Run addressed the board. Mrs. Bushby said that she is opposed to the Community House rezoning. She said there are thirteen people in their subdivision opposed to the rezoning, six are in favor of the rezoning, three were relatives of the applicant, and three did not live in their subdivision.

Katie Cavanaugh of 136 Francis Street addressed the Board regarding her opposition to the rezoning application submitted by Justin Laney. Mrs. Cavanaugh explained that she operates a horse-riding school on her property and has done so for the past seven years. She expressed serious concerns about the potential impact of a commercial business being located directly across the street from her facility, especially given that small children participate in riding lessons. Mrs. Cavanaugh emphasized that the presence of heavy equipment poses a significant safety risk, noting that horses can be unpredictable in such environments. Her primary concern is the safety of the children who ride at her school. While acknowledging that she supports entrepreneurship, she stated that individuals should thoroughly research property zoning before making a purchase. She noted that purchasing property surrounded by low-income single-family homes and expecting commercial rezoning is not appropriate. Mrs. Cavanaugh further stated that she would never purchase farmland in an area likely to be rezoned for commercial use and urged the Board to preserve the quiet and peaceful nature of the neighborhood. She praised the strong sense of community among the residents of Francis Street and reiterated her concerns for her neighbors. She also mentioned using a vacuum system on her property, further illustrating her commitment to maintaining a clean and safe environment.

Woody Horst of 185 Francis Street, addressed the Board and began by commenting on the poor sound quality in the meeting room, humorously suggesting that if his taxes were lowered, the County could afford a better sound system. Mr. Horst noted that he is a neighbor of Katie Cavanaugh and formerly kept horses himself. He expressed concern about the safety hazards posed by commercial truck traffic, specifically citing the use of jake brakes and downshifting, which could startle horses. He warned that it is only a matter of time before a child could be injured due to this activity. While Mr. Horst shared that he has mixed feelings, acknowledging his support for individuals starting personal businesses, he stressed that the increase in truck traffic would likely lead to the road being overhauled and widened. He reported the presence of a pothole between Sudduth Road and Francis Street, which has repeatedly caused damage to his farmer's market trailer, including a bent axle. He added that when semi-trucks travel through the area, they are often forced to pull into ditches due to the narrow road. Mr. Horst stated that he is currently trying to sell his property and believes he has a potential buyer, affect his property value. He concluded his remarks by quoting his father's advice: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," explaining that this is how he wants to live.

11. Round Table

Commissioner Gilles recognized Vice-Chair Fletcher and County Clerk Davidson for organizing and writing the Proclamations presented tonight.

Chairman Traylor said he found out that Upson County has a County Manager's job opening and said they were thankful for County Administrator Townsend, who lives in Upson County, for doing an excellent job and staying on with Lamar County. He requested that everyone give him a round of applause. County Administrator Townsend said he was not applying for that job in Upson County.

Chairman Traylor stated that the Association of County Commissioners (ACCG) and Carl Vinson of the University of Georgia (UGA) provides Core and Specialty Track Training. Recently Commissioner Lovett was awarded with earning his Commissioner Core Track Completion Certificate at the ACCG Annual Conference. Vice-Chair Fletcher and Commissioner Gilles had previously been awarded with their Commissioner Core Track Completion Certificates. Chairman Traylor congratulated them all. County Clerk Davidson congratulated and reported that Chairman Traylor was also awarded with a Specialty Track Certificate: Quality of Life/Social Issues. County Clerk Davidson explained that along with the Core Certification there are 8 Specialty Track courses requiring many hours of training that any Commissioner, Manager, Administrator, or Clerk can take.
